Re:
Private Letter Ruling Request

Dear Mr.

We have your letter dated January 26, 2012, in which you have inquired as to your above-referenced client's North Carolina sales and use tax liability on a particular transaction.

You advise that your client, is in the process of developing a it plans to manufacture and sell. Its activities are conducted at the Airport in Your client is at the end of its preproduction phase and will begin the production phase soon. “As part of the sales process, will arrange for the furnishing of certain services to its customers. One of the services to be furnished is the training of the flight and maintenance personnel for the aircraft purchased by its customers.”

is in the business of providing training for pilots and maintenance personnel, and has entered into an agreement . . . with to provide initial and recurrent training for the flight and maintenance personnel of customers.” You furnished a copy of the “Agreement Between and” (“Agreement”), which provides that at its sole cost and expense, shall furnish the supplies to perform the training services called for under the Agreement.

“This will include, without limitation, providing and maintaining (including refurbishing as necessary so that it continues to be useable over the entire term of this Agreement) a flight simulator (the “Simulator”), a flight-deck simulator devices (DTS), training manuals, courseware and other required training materials.”

The Agreement also provides that shall furnish to at no charge and in accordance with Schedule B, all aircraft manuals, aircraft and engineering data (including without limitation flight test, mechanical and electrical data) aircraft parts, avionics manuals, avionics data, avionics parts, and all other vendor data, parts and materials, including all related third party licenses and other agreements, reasonably required for the design, construction, use, maintenance and modification of the Simulator, any additional simulators, other training devices, equipment and all courseware."

You have inquired whether the parts provided to that become an integral part of the flight simulators are exempt from North Carolina sales and use tax pursuant to N.C. Gen. Stat. § 105-164.13(45c). N.C. Gen. Stat. § 105-164.13(45c) provides an exemption from sales and use tax on sales of aircraft simulators to a company for flight crew training and maintenance training. You have further inquired as to the proper taxation of spare parts your client will provide to for use in any flight simulator referenced in the Agreement.

N.C. Gen. Stat. § 105-164.6(a) imposes a use tax on tangible personal property and certain digital property purchased inside or outside this State for storage, use, or consumption in this State. N.C. Gen. Stat. § 105-164.3(49) defines the term “use” as “[t]he exercise of any right, power, or dominion whatsoever over tangible personal property, digital property, or a service by the purchaser of the property or service. The term includes withdrawal from storage, distribution, installation, affixation to real or personal property, and exhaustion or consumption of the property or service by the owner or purchaser. . . .” While the parts are to be used by to construct and/or maintain a flight simulator, “use” of the parts is not a sale of a flight simulator and will not qualify for the exemption from tax under N.C. Gen. Stat. § 105-164.13(45c). Additionally, as the parts are not mill machinery, mill machinery parts or accessories used by to manufacture they are not subject to the 1% privilege tax pursuant to N.C. Gen. Stat. § 105-187.51(a)(1). Based on the information presented, the parts, spare parts, and other tangible personal property furnishes to at no charge are subject to use tax under the provisions of N.C. Gen. Stat. § 105-164.6(a). Currently, the State use tax rate is 4.75%, and the local use tax rate for County is 2%.
